

PROSECUTION OF CUSTOMS FRAUDS

President Well Satisfied With
Progress Being Made in Sugar
Weighing Cases.

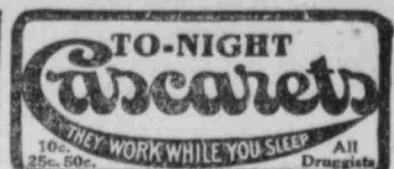

NO INVESTIGATION WANTED.

Not Expedient for Congress to Have The Government's Information at Present.

Washington, April 13.—A conference at the White House today developed to the evident satisfaction of President Taft that sufficiently rapid headway is being made with the prosecutions against the so-called "sugar trust" for customs frauds and that there is little likelihood of a congressional investigation at this time.

It is presumed that the administration influence will be used against any inquiry and without the consent of the president there is practically no way in which Congress can get the information that is being used by the department of justice in pending prosecutions and in further prosecutions which it is believed will be entered into soon.

For several days rumors of a congressional investigation of the "sugar trust" have prevailed in Washington. Representative Fitzgerald of New York recently introduced a resolution asking the president whether it would be expedient for Congress to have the government's information at this time. The resolution was referred to the committee on expenditure in the treasury department, of which Representative Hill of Connecticut is chairman.

Mr. Hill was at the White House today, and after a conference with the president declared he deemed it inexpedient for Congress to have the government's information and thought the president would assume the same attitude.

Meanwhile Henry Stimson, in charge of the sugar prosecution at New York, and Collector Loe of New York, had arrived in Washington. Mr. Loe spent the morning at the treasury department and Mr. Stimson went direct to the department of justice. This afternoon both Mr. Stimson and Mr. Loe went to the White House.

Asst. Secy. Curtis and Atty.-Gen. Wickersham were also there. When the conference adjourned the following statement was given out: "Mr. Stimson, who has charge of the prosecution of the customs frauds in the weighers' department in New York, and Mr. Loe, the collector of the port, were summoned to Washington for the purpose of conferring with the president, the secretary of the treasury, the attorney-general and Mr. Curtis, the assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of customs, with reference to the progress of the investigation into the customs frauds and their prosecution."

"The conference related not only to the criminal prosecutions and investigations before the grand jury, but also the executive inspection conducted by the treasury department and general subjects developed as a result of the investigation. The conference disclosed the fact that the criminal prosecutions were being vigorously conducted and the examinations by the treasury department were making satisfactory headway."

A WISCONSIN PIONEER

Says Pe-ru-na is
"Worth its Weight in Gold."

John Paulin, Sr. Says: "Peruna Cured My Catarh."

Mr. John Paulin, Sr., a pioneer of Port Washington, Wis., 119 Franklin St., is held in high esteem by the residents of that place. He is one of the oldest citizens. In a recent letter he says:

"I have used Peruna with good results for coughs and colds which troubled me every fall and winter. It has also cured my catarh, which always became worse when affected with a slight cold. I am recommending Peruna because it is worth its weight in gold."—Mr. John Paulin, Port Washington, Wis.

Peruna is a Catarrhal Tonic Especially Adapted to the Declining Powers of Old Age.

Hale and hearty old age means plenty of healthy organs and healthy functions retained beyond the usual time. As a rule, at the age of 60 or 70 years, the functions begin to wane and the various organs to lose their natural power.

This need not occur. At least not in all cases. Many a man and woman have retained their health and vigor much later in life.

We have on file several letters from octogenarians who have found Peruna of priceless value to them as their declining years advanced.

Has Reached Four Score Years and Weighs 156 Pounds.

Mr. Levi Kegg, Rainsburg, Pa., writes: "Your medicine has done me so much good I intend to keep it on hand all the time."

"I had all the symptoms of systematic catarrh. My eyes were red and inflamed, my throat, stomach and bowels troubled me, was nervous, had nervous headaches. I am now entirely cured by Peruna."

"I am eighty years old, and I never weighed more than 140, but now I weigh 156 pounds."

Fairbanks Expedition Erected a

HEIGHT OF MOUNTAIN 20,500

Barrill, Cook's Guide, Who Said Cook
Didn't Make Ascent, Doesn't Believe Expedition Did.

Fairbanks, Alaska, April 13.—The Fairbanks Mount McKinley expedition that reached the summit of the peak started to follow the route alleged to have been taken by Dr. Frederick A. Cook and was obliged to abandon it as impossible.

Thomas Lloyd, leader of the expedition, says no traces of Cook's camps were found and he declared the doctor's story of the four-day ascent a pure myth.

Lloyd placed his crude notes of the journey in the hands of a committee of the Order of Planners of Alaska, who will arrange for publication of the story.

The party took photographs of the summit and of points along the trail. They also established the trail so well that it can be followed by other parties next summer.

On the stretch of trail eight miles long the explorers worked two weeks. On one of the peaks a flagstaff 14 feet tall was erected, firmly buttressed by rock. The work done by the Fairbanks men can be easily verified. An aneroid measurement taken by the men placed the height of the mountain at 20,500 feet.

Ten men were in the party that left Fairbanks with dog teams in December. It was the theory of the leaders that the ascent would be less dangerous in early spring than later, when the snow began to melt. This theory was confirmed by the experience of the expedition.

The expedition, on reaching the base of the mountain, went into camp, waited for better weather and planned the ascent. All were familiar with the great mountain and its habits. None of the men had scientific education, and they took no special apparatus except cameras and a barometer. They were equipped as for prospecting and traveled as light as possible and with the food supply of the Alaska miner.

ASCENT BEGUN.

When the ascent was begun the first camp was made at the line of the willows, the second at 2,900 feet, the third at 10,000 feet, the fourth at 16,000 feet and from this camp the dash to the top was made. Four dogs went to the third camp and one of the fourth. Snow shoes were used most of the way, and much time was consumed in carrying supplies to the fourth camp, travel over the steep ice compelling light loads.

The party did not set out to disprove Dr. Cook's story, but to climb the mountain. They found the summit utterly unlike those pictured in the doctor's book. On the rock peak they left an American flag 52 feet attached to a 14-foot staff with a 4 inch butt. The pole was held firmly in place by rocks piled about the base and by guy ropes. The flag was visible for a long distance on the north side of the mountain. The building of the monument about the flag was difficult because of the rarified atmosphere. The view from the summit was obscured by clouds at the lower levels.

The snow was generally firm and the crevasses filled with snow and easy to cross except in a few instances. Later in the season avalanches and treacherous crevasses must be guarded against.

The explorers discovered a magnificent unnamed peak 16,000 feet tall and also a new pass through the mountain range which shortens the distance to the coast, 75 miles. The pass is flanked by majestic perpendicular walls.

Daniel Patterson W. R. Taylor and Charles McDougall remained at Katishna and only Lloyd came in. The pioneers' committee took steps to verify Lloyd's story through the mountain range which shortens the distance to the coast, 75 miles. The pass is flanked by majestic perpendicular walls.

ASCENT BEGUN.

When the ascent was begun the first camp was made at the line of the willows, the second at 2,900 feet, the third at 10,000 feet, the fourth at 16,000 feet and from this camp the dash to the top was made. Four dogs went to the third camp and one of the fourth. Snow shoes were used most of the way, and much time was consumed in carrying supplies to the fourth camp, travel over the steep ice compelling light loads.

LAND FRAUDS.

Can Government Sue for Value After Criminal Action Is Barred?

Portland, Or., April 14.—In a motion to amend the complaint in the United States against C. A. Smith, a millionaire timber land owner of Minneapolis, Minn., United States Dist. Atty. John McCourt has asked the federal district court to sustain the right of the government to lodge an action in equity for the recovery of the value of the lands in this state acquired through fraud, where the statute of limitations prevents either criminal prosecution or an action to set aside the patents. Hinging on the disposal of this motion, it is stated, is the filing of many suits by the department of justice for recovery of the value of all lands in Oregon, which the govern-has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the "sage tea," such as was old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has placed on advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea" containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Weyl's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Weyl Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

MODERN HAIR DRESSING
